Remember the Baobab: A story of double redemption Mr. Gunther Holman

Dr. Gunther Holman sits down at a park bench in Bad Munster, Germany one day and reminisces about the incident that poisoned his heart seven years ago. His story begins with Russia's 9/11, the Beslan School Massacre, where hundreds of children are maimed and killed by Islamic terrorists. The setting shifts to the humanitarian crisis in Darfur when Al Qaeda bomb maker, Omar Masseyf, flees the school hijacking and returns home to the Sudan. Omar finds sanctuary in a displaced persons camp amidst the very people he has been conditioned to hate. As his secret comes to light, several camp residents are still willing to help him face the coming onslaught by Russian government assassins. One is the Cambodian, Nurse Nancy, an ex-Khmer Rouge turned Christian missionary who takes on a surprising admiration for him. Another is CIA agent Merc Magregor, who suffers from survivor guilt for having been a platoon leader in Afghanistan. The other is Peter dut James, a Dinka tribesman suffering with PTSD since his ordeal as a Lost Boy. The Good Doctor is the physician at the camp with his own dark secret. His stream-of-conscience narrative and perverted actions depict the ultimate hypocrite in need of the same transformation Omar avoids experiencing.
