Death From Child Abuse...and no one heard Dana Weikel, Eve Krupinski

Part One portrays the last week of life for a young girl, Ursula Sunshine Assaid, and how society failed to save her from violent, fatal child abuse. Teachers and neighbors were blind to her private hell...nobody took the simple steps that would have prevented her excruciating death. This story is unique and powerful because it gives us the point of view of the child in her final days of life.

Part One energizes the reader to become a soldier in defense of the helpless while Part Two provides current practical information and guidance to help identify, prevent, report and defend against child abuse. This book is a must-read for students from middle school to grad school, educators, parents, grandparents, law enforcement, the judiciary and all others who would protect the innocent and foster a more healthy and just society.
