The Wall Book: The Interior Walls of Your Home and How to Build Them, Move Them, and Tear Them Down, How to Decorate Them With Paint, Paper, Panelling Stanley Schuler

Anyone who has ever bought a house knows that the first order of business is the interior walls. At least some of them have to be painted, or plastered or papered right away. And perhaps one or two have to be torn down, or moved to make the house fit the family's needs. And eventually others will be decorated with one or another of the scores of new materials that have come on the market. THE WALL BOOK tells the reader everything he needs to know about the walls in his house: how they are constructed, how to tell which are bearing walls and which are non-bearing (the non-bearing walls can be torn down or moved with little trouble) and how to paint, plaster and paper. It deals with such seemingly simple projects as hanging pictures, and such seemingly difficult ones as erecting luminous walls. There are sections which discuss the uses for many special wall coverings: mirrors, panelling, grass cloth, ceramic tiles, vinyl and many others. In each case the author gives step-by-step instructions on the best method of installation. The illustrations in THE WALL BOOK, of which there are almost one hundred, are simple and easy to follow.
